POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Hottest battle of a red hot session was the scorching fight at Sacramento over "hot cargo." And despite the fact that labor lobbyists were belted clear out of the ring in the legislative fracas, the battle seems to be far from ended.

Round two is coming up!

Whether labor will open up in the second round with a referendum against the new bill, which outlaws the secondary boycott, or whether the fight will be taken to court in an attempt to knock out the act on constitutional grounds, is still undecided. But one attack or the other—and possibly both—will be launched without delay, according to labor spokesmen.

Sponsors of the bill, on the other hand, having fought for months to win their final spectacular triumph at Sacramento, when they succeeded in over-riding Governor Olson's veto, are determined to maintain their advantage—and will bitterly oppose any attempt to undo the work done in the Legislature.

The first blow in the second round of the battle will be struck, in all probability, by Phil Bancroft, Walnut Creek farmer—and one of the leaders in the long fight to outlaw "hot cargo"—at a meeting of several thousand Merced county farmers and Legionnaires on June 22. The meeting will be the annual picnic staged by Stevinson Post of the American Legion, with the aid of the Merced Post, on the banks of the Merced River, near Stevinson, and will be attended by scores of state dignitaries, in addition to the residents of the area. The prime moving figure behind the affair is former Lieutenant Governor George J. Hatfield. Bancroft who will be one of the leaders in the fight against a referendum on the "hot cargo" bill—in the event a referendum is attempted — will speak on "The Farmer's Battle Against Secondary Boycott."

Labor, meanwhile, is busily preparing for its next move. C. J. Haggerty, president of the State Federation of Labor, has announced that he will recommend to his executive board that AFL attorneys be directed to attack the measure's constitutionality in the courts. Haggerty, however, is said to question the advisability of carrying the battle to the people via referendum, apparently afraid of the reaction if the fight should be lost at the polls. Representing a contrary view point, Senator John F. Shelley, president of the San Francisco Labor Council, has announced that his council strongly favors a referendum drive and is prepared to contribute liberally toward it.

But regardless of whether the boys lead with their right, or come out jabbing with their left, round two is about to open. And the battle promises to go on most of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Smith and family of Sunnyside avenue spent Sunday at Santa Cruz and Seacliffe.

Next week Martin Walsh will present Max Watson who will talk on juvenile delinquency.

Shipping Stations Established On Coast by Church

Two shipping stations have been established on the Pacific coast by the Christian Science church where garments for the civilian population of Great Britain are regularly consigned to ships sailing direct to Britain by way of the Panama Canal.

Garments are distributed in England by Christian Science committees to all persons in need, regardless of creed.

In Los Gatos the Christian Science War Relief committee, established by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Los Gatos, is assembling new and used garments, and providing materials for any experienced helpers in sewing and knitting.

Highest grade materials are used, and the types of garments made include children's skirts and dresses, sweaters for men, women and children, night clothing, pinafores and other types of wearing apparel.

In receiving used clothing the committee specifies that such articles must be clean and warm.

Headquarters in Los Gatos are at 20 Wilcox avenue, and are open daily from 1 to 4 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Last Rites For Freeman Howes Held Saturday

Freeman L. Howes, one of the valley's native sons, passed away last week Wednesday at his home on Los Gatos-Almaden road after a long illness.

Howes was the son of John and Elizabeth Howes, one of the county's earliest families who settled on a homestead in Union district, where Freeman was born in 1865.

During most of his life Howes lived on the home place, with an interruption while he managed a ranch near Morgan Hill, and four years during which he served in the navy on the flagship Florida, at the time of the World War.

Surviving relatives are his wife, Ida Marian Howes and two children, Roy L. and Ruby D. Howes, the latter a member of the Campbell High school faculty, and two sisters, Mrs. Lillie Hanrahan and Mrs. Florence M. LaMontagne.

Services were held Saturday from the Place funeral home in Los Gatos, the Rev. Nottley S. Hammack, officiating, and Mrs. A. R. Gustafson presiding at the organ.

Worthy Master D. G. Helm of Los Gatos lodge, F. & A. M., of which he was a member, conducted the ceremonies at Oak Hill Memorial Park which were followed by cremation.

He was also interested in the Odd Fellows order and the Eastern Star.

Pallbearers were Arch Cilker, Owen Smith, Elias Clendening, D. H. Cramer, Bill Jones and Earnest Booker.

"Flame of New Orleans" Next On Bill At Theater

With a variety of new elements showing themselves in its production, Universal's "The Flame of New Orleans" will be at Blanco's Campbell theater on Friday and Saturday. The picture comes with a new and highly amusing Marlene Deitrich.

It is the star's first venture into light comedy, and a most successful venture. Miss Dietrich's lightness has been hidden for several years under the bushel of heavy dramatic parts, and her emergence is a revelation.

On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 22, 23 and 24 will be "A Woman's Face" co-starring Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas. Also on the same program is "They Gave Us Wings."

On Wednesday, June 25, Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr will be seen in "Lady of the Tropics," and as an added attraction, Gene Autry in "Gaucho Serenade."

Mr. and Mrs. Al West, former residents of Campbell now living in San Jose, will leave around the 4th of July for a two weeks motor trip and vacation in Montana and Yellowstone National Park.

THEY HOLD THE BRIDGES

"America cannot afford special privileges for any group," declared federal trust buster Thurman Arnold the other day.

On his official visit to California last week, the Assistant Attorney General of the United States leveled his sights particularly at those union groups having to do with the movement of goods. "The middlemen of labor," he termed them, "who have seized and occupied the economic toll bridges of distribution. And the cost of that seizure," he warned, "if uncurbed, will be colossal."

It was not defense strikes that Arnold had in mind but the exploitation of low-income consumers through unfair labor practices. In Washington, D. C., he reported, the drivers' union threatens to cut off deliveries to certain stores selling a five cent loaf of bread unless they increase the price to seven cents. In Chicago, milk wagon drivers have sought to prohibit use of paper bottles and store sales of milk. In Lower Manhattan today it costs $112 more to distribute a car of fresh produce than it does immediately outside this area of consumer exploitation.

Of what value is it to America to have developed unsurpassed methods of distribution, of eliminating waste steps in the movement of goods from farms to city markets, if the consumer is to be deprived of these benefits by the actions of a few powerful, well organized groups?

Labor has indeed proved that in unions there is strength. It is now time for certain elements in Labor to prove they mean to use that strength for the common good—and not at the expense of it.

* * * * * *

TIME LOST

Time stolen from the defense program, time irreparably lost in America's desperate race against time, has thus far resulted in a loss of more than 2,370,716 days of labor since January 1.

That staggering total, reported by the War Department, includes only those strikes in industries engaged on ordnance and material contracts for the Army. It does not include losses suffered by strike action in plants and shipyards working on naval contracts.

Can the country afford this squanderlust of precious time? Revelation by the Gallup poll that three-fourths of the nation's citizens favor the extreme step of banning all strikes in defense industries shows that the majority of the public thinks not. It wants work, not stop work orders!

LEARN TO SWIM!

Already summertime outings to beaches and rivers are taking their needless toll of young lives through drowning. Many of these tragedies could have been avoided if the victims had known how to swim. It would be well for parents to take steps now to see that their children do know.

As a healthful, invigorating sport, swimming belongs on the list of must-accomplishments of every normal youngster, and so, as a matter of course, does a knowledge of first-aid treatment for submersion as a means of saving the lives of others. Certainly it is better for parents to obtain competent swimming instruction for their children now than to leave such training to chance or luck, or the haphazard coaching of playmates.

Swimming season is here. For the youngsters who don't yet know how, let it also be the season for learning to swim!

TOURIST DIVIDENDS

The All-California association reported a few days ago that tourists in California spend more than $200,000,000 annually—enough to build Shasta Dam, the Los Angeles City Hall and the San Francisco Bay Bridge combined!

Tourist trade, as a matter of fact, represents one of California's most profitable enterprises, with every member of the community sharing in the dividends. The dollars vacationists spend at resorts don't stay in the pockets of the resort-keeper; they go to pay the butcher, the baker and the grocer and all he men and women who are employed, directly and indirectly, in catering to the needs of fun-hungry humanity. All California profits.

But aside from the dollars-and-cents end of the tourist business, there are many other compensations. Playing host to millions of vacationists and globe trotters is a pleasurable, satisfying business, because there is undoubted happiness in contributing to the happiness of others. Then, too, we all have pardonable pride in our home state and our home town—and we must admit that it's more than nice to live right smack in the middle of the world's most superb playground, where people from all corners of the earth doff their hats in awe and wonderment.

It's a good business, this tourist business, and it pays real dividends.

SCHOOL COSTS MAY DROP

With living costs on the steady up-sweep and all other costs well along the same spiralling road, borne on the impetus of national defense, it comes as a pleasant shock to hear of the probability of a falling off in demands of the public school system.

"If the facilities of a high school are adequate to to care for its present enrollment, it would be unwise for the governing board to enlarge its physical plant or to increase its teaching staff without a very careful study of the probable enrollments in the next few years," advises the California Taxpayers' association.

Except in large communities where large defense industries are centered, the group declares, regular day high schools will not increase their enrollment during the next eight or ten years. Reason: the "short baby crops" of the 1920's are now leveling off high school enrollments.

In 1924 the number of births in California reached 36,899—and never hit that figure again in the following 13 years!

With a drop in enrollment, high school expenditures should drop also, advises the tax body, and any such decrease should be considered in school spending plan for the coming year.

We like our schools, as everything else in California, to be bigger and better and finer year by year. But if a natural and inescapable decline in high school enrollment is due to occur as indicated, we certainly will welcome any tax relief such a drop affords.

CONQUERORS MUST DIE

It is well to remember, perhaps, in this grim era of the swastika, that there have been other Hitlers, in other days—whose far-flung empires have fallen apart, and whose names are now simply something to trouble the students of history.

Conquerors must die, but love of liberty never dies. That is the lesson one can learn from history.

Napoleon died, a prisoner on St. Helena, at 52. That, incidently, is Hitler's age right now. Alexander died before he was 34. Julius Caesar died at 56. Genghis Khan at 65. Each, in his day, rattled his sword and dreamed of world conquest. Each, except for Genghis Khan, died comparitively young. And their worlds refused to stay conquered. If there was freedom of the press in Nazi Germany, which of course there isn't, we would append the note: "Berlin papers, please copy!"

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

(In a new series of articles on "Our State Government," Commissioner George R. Reilly, our member of the State Board of Equalization, plans a streamlined analysis of the most important departments of state government, and their functions. The series when complete will give a comprehensive and informative picture to our readers as to how state government in California works.)

The California Horse Racing Board came into existence in 1933 when pari-mutuel betting on horse races was legalized in the state. The commission consists of three members appointed by the Governor for staggered terms of four years. They are charged with the control and regulation of horse racing at the various tracks in California.

* * * * * *

Another important state department is that of the Regulation of Professions. This includes the state bar, the department of osteopathic examiners and the board of chiropractic examiners. The state bar is administered by a board of governors, comprised of one from each congressional district of the state and four members at large. They pass upon the examining for, and the practice of law in California.

The State Board of Osteopathic Examiners is comprised of five members appointed by the Governor for staggered terms of three years. They are charged with the licensing of osteopaths and the enforcements of the State Medical Act as applied to Osteopathic schools and practitioners. The State Board of Chiropractic Examiners consists of five members appointed by the Governor for terms of three years and their function is to license chiropractors and supervise their profession in the state.

* * * * * *

The Department of Water Resources and Conservation is concerned primarily with water problems throughout the state. These problems include flood control, reclamation of swamp lands, drainage and the various duties associated with these problems. Under the direction of this department comes the great Central Valley project working with the bureau of reclamation of the United States Department of the Interior. This vast project costing several hundred millions of dollars is being financed by the federal government, and when completed will solve the irrigation problem of the vast central valley area of California. Irrigation is another concern of this department as is the problem of districts' security bonds.

Women Invited To Join Los Gatos Ambulance Corps

Women of Campbell are invited to join the Los Gatos unit of the Women's Ambulance and Transport Corps of California.

Applicants must be over 18 years of age, American citizens or have received first citizenship papers and willing to devote two nights a week to training. All members of the corps must be fingerprinted and receive a physical examination.

Recruiting is under the direction of Commander Julia G. Dowell, who states:

"We're training women for work in the event of local disaster or any national emergency. Our fifteen units in the state have received all possible unofficial aid from the U. S. Army Ninth Corps Area headquarters."

The "rookies" will have a stiff schedule before them. Instructions will be received from Army and Marine Corps officers, reserve or retired, whose services are volunteered. First, they will be taught infantry drill for discipline and coordination purposes, after which they will be given a full army first aid course, which is conducted by medical officers.

Instruction in radio sending, and receiving, ambulance driving, truck driving, the use of gas masks, pistol and rifle marksmanship, mechanics, and ultimately, aviation and parachute troop work is in prospect for these patriotic women.

The organization is the outgrowth of an idea in the mind of Mrs. Dowell, who is Commander-in-Chief to develop a group of women who will be qualified to do emergency duty when needed.

Any one interested may receive further information by phoning Helen Lilly, Los Gatos 595-R, or leaving her name at the Los Gatos swimming pool.

Bryan Gilkinson and daughter, Miss Beth were over-night guests of Mrs. H. C. Smith Friday, on their way home to San Gabriel from a trip to Redding.

Every Woman Should Wear A Hat

No woman is fully dressed unless she has a hat on her head too, says Carrie Munn, New York social registerite famous for her hats and general chic in clothes. Mrs. Munn, now a designer of hats and dresses, also recommends several hats for each costume. The one she is wearing is a flower hat of white carnations with poppies and green leaves between. The veiling is of coarse white mesh, a fashion Mrs. Munn helped introduce. Hat and suit are Munn originals.

Draw Your Culinary Tricks From a Magic Bag of Lemons

By BETTY BARCLAY

Into his bag of tricks goes the magician's hand. Out come thrilling surprises that bring delighted "ahs" and "ohs" from the audience. A bag of lemons gives the cook a host of culinary tricks to delight family and guests.

The versatile lemon provides flavor magic that presto! change! turns uninteresting foods into menu top-liners. These tricks are so many and pleasing, it becomes a wise rule "to buy by the bag," — a dozen or more at a time. Never leave the kitchen without its magic lemon.

A Trick for Tea

This bit of magic makes ordinary tea (any kind) reminiscent of rare and expensive blends. Add 1 teaspoon of grated lemon peel to 4 to 6 teaspoons of tea leaves. Steep as usual. Serve with juiceful, decorative lemon quarters.

Salad Wizardy

A salad is only as good as its dressing. Here again, the fresh tang and flavor of lemon gives a cue to the culinary magician. Try it in your favorite dressing.

Especially good with a fruit salad is Lemon French Dressing. Blend well: ½ cup lemon juice, ½ cup salad oil, 1 teaspoon each salt and paprika, 2 tablespoons sugar or honey.

For other salad tricks, crisp greens by adding lemon juice to water in which they are freshened. Sprinkle bananas, apples, pears and peaches with lemon juice to keep color light.

Lemon Tarts Capture Hearts

Serve him Lemon Tarts. Eve used this magic on Adam. Mix ¾ cup sugar, 5 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups water or milk, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel. Cook in double boiler, stirring frequently until mixture thickens (10-15 minutes). Add 2 well-beaten egg yolks and 6 tablespoons lemon juice. Beat well. Cool and turn into tart shells. Top with meringue. Beat 2 egg whites until frothy. Add gradually ¼ cup sugar. When stiff, pile on tarts. Brown in oven.

A Magic Touch for Vegetables

Supreme trick! Lemon transforms neglected but necessary vegetables into foods that even the children like. As important in serving vegetables as the salt and pepper shakers, is a dish of lemon quarters.

Good with asparagus, artichokes, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and Brussels sprouts, is Lemon Butter — two parts melted butter and one part lemon juice.

Other Lemon Tricks

A few drops of lemon juice on melon discovers hidden flavor. Try this, too, with avocados and with prune, pineapple, tomato and other fruit juices.

Sprinkle buttered waffles or hot cakes with sugar and a liberal squeeze of lemon juice.

Experiment with lemon and be your own culinary magician.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE

K. C. Dwelley - C. E. York

Campbell High has a four-year course in vocational agriculture. Each boy is to do three things throughout each of the four years. He is to carry on an approved home-farm program consisting of such enterprises as pertain to his individual farm, and are within his abilities and interests. Here he puts into use the theories and practices learned in the classroom, in field trips, and agricultural demonstrations.

The classroom work consists of the study of crops, soils, horticulture, poultry, husbandry, livestock, landscaping, gardening, farm management, economics, insect pests and diseases of plants and animals. He must take farm mechanics in which he learns to become handy with tools, to keep in repair his farm implements, and to construct needed equipment for the farm. The keynote of it all is that he learns to do by doing.

ART DEPARTMENT

Miss Lewis - Mr. Casaleggio

Designing, sketching, craft and mechanical drawing are the four main divisions of the art department. The first three deal with the fine arts and the crafts, planned to develop drawing skill and to bring the student in direct contact with color and the application to his every-day life.

Fine arts is divided into Art I, Art II, and Advanced Art which start with black and white designs and these designs are applied to material as a linoleum printed textile then free brush lettering and color design follow which are a step toward the making of posters; finally, the color design knowledge is transferred to projects for other classes which are usually large surface murals based on research in that period; and lastly, sketching is given in the last part of the year, experimenting techniques and getting the student ready for the second or third year of art.

Craft, which is given to special students is usually leather work, wood carving or textile printing. However, all craft work follows the first design units given in Art I.

Mechanical drawing is designed for the engineering or shop student. It consists of lay-outs of plane surface and solids, dimensionally correct in three-view drawing and perspective. The handling and care of the instruments as well as the making of blue prints is included.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The Tawasi Camp Fire group held the last dance of the school year at the community hall on June 14. The theme of the dance was "Goodbye Now" and the room was colorfully decorated with ships and travel posters while suitcases full of many colored flowers carried out the vacation idea.

Those attending danced to the popular strains of Bob Barry and his orchestra. A novel floor show was presented during the intermission. Jean Bocca, a member of the group, gave a charming interpretation of several Hawaiian Hulas. A special treat for the evening was a professional vaudeville act by Ernie Burkhart and company which included some difficult roping stunts by Mr. and Mrs. Burkhart and clever tricks performed by their trained dog, Shep.

Committee members working on this unique event were Doris Fields, Violet Burkhart, Jean Wolff, decorations; Jane Gerrans, Betty Jurras, orchestra, bids and publicity; Carol Lantz, Mary Sue Field, refreshments.

Pruning Roses

The time to prune climbing roses is after they have bloomed, not early in the spring. Spring is the time to cut off all parts that have been winter-killed

"Pirate Gold" Episode In Ice Follies

Life on the Spanish Main with 16 pretty little pirates, old chests full of human gems and featuring the great Canadian skating pair, Colson and Claudet, make up a brilliant production number, "Pirate Gold," in the new Ice Follies of 1941 now appearing nightly at Winterland, in San Francisco.

Making ice-show history, Ice Follies offers for the first time of group of "Pirate Girls" on a skating surface in the best Ziegfeld or George White manner. Eight Ice Follies ballerinas wear tremendous glorified costumes representing precious stones and metals as the treasure in this pirate number. They are the gems which are presented by Osborn Colson, the bold buccaneer, to his lady, Fran Claudet.

Another innovation in this number is the original music written especially for the episode by Stanley Cowan and Bobby Worth. To the catchy tune of "Pretty Little Pirate," the girls, dressed in vari-colored pirate garb, present a dashing routine which introduces the team of Colson and Claudet.

Seen for the first time as a pair in Ice Follies of 1940, Colson and Claudet, two of the outstanding pair skaters on the North American continent, offer an entirely new routine of pure figure skating. Both of them have held major championships in Canada, and have the happy faculty of translating skill to terms of the show world.
